PARADIGMS OF THE IRREGULAR VERBS.

GENERAL REMARKS.

1. Do regularly precedes the Imperfect, Preterite, Conditional and verbal noun and also forms part of certain irregular verbs but is often omitted; it is sometimes used in the present as a simple relative often replaced by a.

2. A special relative form in -r is often used in Connaught and sometimes in the other provinces in the 3 s. of the present (-ar, -ear) and future (-far, -fear). In the present r is often added to the ordinary 3 s., e.g. bíonnr; verbs in the simple relative are regularly aspirated.

3. The Passive or Autonomous regularly escapes aspiration in the relative and after má and ní but often aspiration is used.

4. The verb ir has no synthetic forms; all other verbs have both synthetic and analytic forms; the former are usual except in the 3 s. and 2 pl., but the latter are common in the dependent (i.e. with ní, an, gc.; má takes the absolute form of the verb).

5 (a). The termination -e, -a, as alternative to -ir, -air (2 s.) is sometimes met with; and -tí, -taí, or -tí, -thí are alternative to the analytic form with riú. Examples noted are:—An gcluine rúd! do you hear that! an gcloirtí! really! (do ye hear!); cad deire? what do you say? an mar rin atáthaí (-aoi)? is that the way ye are?

(b). The old 3 s. termination -aid, -id is found in late texts and in U. where -ann, -eann is treated as Habitual Present; al. in 3 s. pret.

(c). Early -am, -eam, still occasionally replaces 1*st pl.* -aimíd esp. in poetry and in the imperative, e.g., déanfam, we will do; bíom, let us be; -aimíd also sometimes replaces -aimír in the imperative.

(d). Future Passive or Autonomous, -far, -fear is often replaced by -faidear, -fidear, esp. in Connaught; oft. -tar (-tear) for -tar (-tear) in pres.

6. The past participle, participle of necessity, and participial adjective end in -ta (-te), -tha (-the) and are sometimes distinguished, e.g., p. a. cuirtha, fágtha; p. nec. cuirthe, fágthe.

7. Adjectives in -ach (sometimes -arach) derived from p. a. of verbs have the force of verbal adjectives of which féanthach (See Dictionary) is an example.

8. A decided tendency towards regularisation exists in regard to the irregular verbs.

Address :

The Hon. Secretary, Irish Texts Society, c/o National Bank, Ltd., Charing Cross, London, S.W.1.

The Irish Texts Society was established in 1898 for the purpose of publishing texts in the Irish language, accompanied by such introductions, English translations, glossaries and notes as may be deemed desirable.

The Annual Subscription is 21*s*. (American subscribers, $5), payable on 1st January. This entitles members to receive, post free, the current volume. There is no entrance fee.

Members whose subscriptions are not in arrear may, where necessary, complete their sets by obtaining back volumes up to Volume XXI. inclusive at the reduced rate of 10*s*. 6*d*. a volume. Volumes XXII. and XXIII. are 12*s*. 6*d*. and all subsequent volumes are 21*s*. each. The current subscription of £1 1*s*. 0*d*. should be paid for the year in which any application is made for back volumes under this arrangement.

The payment of a single sum of £12 12*s*. 0*d*. (colonial or foreign members, £13 0*s*. 0*d*.; American members, 65 dollars), entitles to life membership. Life members will receive one copy of each volume issued subsequently to the receipt of this sum by the Society.

Vols. I. II. III. and XIV. are now out of print and others are rapidly becoming scarce. The ordinary sale price to non-members through Messrs. Simpkin, Marshall & Co., 4 Stationers' Hall Court, London, E.C., is 25*s*. per volume (post free).

The Council makes a strong appeal to all interested in the preservation and publication of Irish Manuscripts to join the Society and to contribute to its funds, and especially to the Editorial Fund, which has been established for the remuneration of Editors for their arduous work.

Note Address.

All communications should be addressed to the Hon. Secretary, Irish Texts Society, c/o National Bank, Ltd., Charing Cross, London, S.W.1.
